Afiya Brown was a McNair Scholar at UCSB in 2011 and 2012 where she studied how gang activities and involvement impact the lives of young Black girls.

...and what you want to accomplish will help you make the best decisions for your future.

For Michelle this was an amazing experience: “I would definitely say that my research this summer has helped me narrow my research interests and will impact my decisions when applying for graduate school.”

Jacqueline Partida was selected for the Summer Research Opportunity Program, UCSB. During her program she worked under Dr. Alexander Lipp, the research program director. She participated in the Illinois Summer Research Symposium, “Consciousness Raising through Artistic Interventions in the Ni Una Mas Social Movement.” She participated in the Summer Research Opportunity Program, UCSB.

Rachel Scalfone attended the Diversity Summer Workshops at Johns Hopkins University. In addition to seminars, she attended the McNair Scholars Mentoring Program.

Benjamin Huffman also had the opportunity to deliver an oral and a poster presentation at the Diversity Summer Internship Program Conference at Johns Hopkins. Benjamin also had the opportunity to deliver an oral and a poster presentation at the Diversity Summer Internship Program Conference at Johns Hopkins. Benjamin also had the opportunity to deliver an oral and a poster presentation at the Diversity Summer Internship Program Conference at Johns Hopkins.
To view this journal and previous journals, please go to: http://mcnair.ucsb.edu/journal.html